About This Content

The L-39 Albatros is a low-wing, high-performance jet aircraft that doubles as a trainer and light attack aircraft. The Albatros was developed in Czechoslovakia in the 1960s to replace older L-29 jet trainers. Powered by an Ivchenko AI-25TL turbofan engine, the L-39 has a top speed of Mach 0.80, a service ceiling of 11,000 m (36,100 feet), and can pull up to 8 G. Although primarily used as a trainer and light attack aircraft, the L-39 has also become popular with several aerial acrobatics demonstration teams.

Being a trainer aircraft, the L-39C has a tandem cockpit with the student in front and the instructor in the back. The instructor has several controls to mimic system failures to test the student. The L-39C also has two underwing pylons for bombs, rockets and close range air-to-air missiles. For decades, the L-39 was used by nations around the world to train pilots that later went on to fly aircraft like the MiG-29 and Su-27.

A later evolution of the L-39 was the L-39ZA light attack aircraft. The ZA adds two additional weapon pylons and a center pylon to mount a gun pod. The ZA has proved a popular choice for low-intensity conflicts. The L-39ZA will be available later during the Open Beta.

Key features of the DCS: L-39 Albatros:

"Penguin Ears"

Thanks for the Linux love! <3. This game is broken. You can't get past level 6. Fix your game!. It's the one. Brilliant! Perfect game I've ever seen.

Nowadays It is so rare playing with true interest till the end.

Usually it gets boring and we just quit or forcing ourselves to finish it and play smth else.

But it's not about this game! I have enjoyed it in one go!

There are 5 campaigns with the best tactics which hard to describe. Better just try.

Etherlords II is unique. It's definitely RPG but with a twist. It has not only turn-based elements, but card system.

And here I've watched the end video of last campaign second time. That's it...

Although it feels a little bit blue. Yeah, I wanna more!. Are you sure you wish to quit this game?

This will make the mighty Zuma angry!. In all honesty- have no clue if I bought the game or got it for free. Either way this game IS WORTH A PLAY! 5 hours in and I was hooked after 30 min. Enjoying the RTS against other monsters. You are able to raise the difficulty of the game yourself up to 145% I believe is the highest I saw?! Also just the character game play a reminder of the old school FF. I'm enjoying the game - default level of difficulty is at 90% (found the level stuff after ward) The story is cool, you have the option of choosing to begin with 6 different monster trainers; each with their own strengths- the one I choose makes cheese really well and had studied this apparently while she was away from her parents. There is also a level of strategy; you have chests to break open as a thief, houses to break into (began reminding me of Skyrim in a sense with this) The music is amazing! Well fit to the game, the changes in pitch and tone are soothing and don't get in the way of concentration or become annoying. Usually I turn off the music in games but this one was left on and will stay on. Different types of stories and lots of quests and errands to run in order to help raise money to pay off your parents debt to the farm you inherited - as side quests you're also helping your neighbors in other cities and such to help pay off their debt as well.

Random run ins with monsters you have to defeat; you do have your own pet to help you out and you are able to gain more pets to help you so long as you have the runes to summon them. They are slightly randomized in a way for ex: i'm a level 1 but while attempting to run a few errands I run into a Level 4 - I'm screwed. However you always return home; there is no death it's a respawn just in your own bed.

I don't have many cons about this game in fact there is truly only one - I love the fact that you have the map with you at all times once after you have found it. However, would be wonderful if on the map it showed where you are as a different color pin. I haven't tried the other difficulty settings as of yet; but do wonder if on EZ mode will your pin show up on the map as a point the you can then use to find your direction? Either way this is such a small concern compared to the game itself. Well done!

Congratulations!

very difficult rts really good.. This isn't Harbinger 2.0, which can be disappointing at first. Once you get over that there is a decent light strategy game here. I'm hopeful more ships will be added over time as what is available seems limited at best. I have yet to unlock everything so maybe I'll feel differently after, still it seems less than Harbinger had to offer.. When you're tired of strategy and just want to fly around in furious and funny air combat, this game is a hoot. You can play for hours or for minutes and you're more likely to laugh when you "die" than get upset.. crashes dont waste time on this move on and find something more reliable.. It took me a few tries to realize how the controls work.I really like this game if you are bored this game is worth to play

But there still are some bugs.

Pros:

- fun
- graphics are nice for an early access game

cons:

- hard a bit

And that is it.Buy if you are bored bois. Decapitating pixelated Samurais is so much fun. I loved the old Shinobi games on Mega drive/Genesis and this game is awesome. A little on the Dark Souls scale of difficulty but you don't feel it as it's so smooth and fun to play. Defo recommended.

If you wanna check out the video I made of it, you can here: <https://youtu.be/ZpawUJDn9Q>. I know there is a lot of hate saying that this is just a small improvement of mxgp 3, well, its true, but the thing is that was just what i wanted. i didnt expect any huge changes or anything, just some small improvements. still a very fun game :)

P.S the graphics are amazing, especally in compound :). Suprisingly good game, plays much like a mix of sins of a solar empire with galactic civilization 2.
